Printing Industry Veteran to Direct Sales for New Company

Kent, Washington; August 2008—Roger Giza has been named to Vice-President of Sales and Marketing for Afton, Inc., a newly formed company marketing the popular Jomac Ryno[®] and Jomac HydroMetric[®] roller material, as well as Jomac spill control products. In addition to his duties at Afton, Giza is responsible for sales and marketing at Heath Custom Press. The two companies have common ownership.

Based in the Chicago area, Giza is well known in the printing industry, having served as Vice-President of Sales for Base-Line for many years. In addition to nearly 20 years with Base-Line, Giza also held management and sales positions with Van Son Holland Ink and Spinks Ink. Giza is highly regarded for his more than 30 years in the industry and his personal commitment to customer satisfaction and product quality.

Heath Custom Press supports the many printers who employ the company's line of check printing presses and MICR products. Heath Custom Press also offers a complete line of polyester printing plates, plus other consumables for printers.

Afton is a new company formed in response to demand for Jomac roller material and Jomac spill control products. Based in Kent, Washington, Afton provides roller compounds required by roller manufacturers and remanufacturers around the world. The Jomac line of roller material offered by Afton is highly regarded in the printing industry, as well as in other applications requiring product consistency and reliability. Jomac spill control products find wide application in a variety of industrial environments. All Afton products are made in the United States.
